Forecast for Sunday 19 Mar 2023

Weather: Rather cloudy at first, perhaps with the odd cloud break further east. Then a bright day with sunny spells but cloud above the summits thickens through the afternoon, bringing outbreaks of rain east during the late afternoon and evening, the rain becoming more persistent and occasionally heavy towards midnight.

Chance of cloud-free hill tops above 600m: Around 50% at dawn rising close to 100% by midday, falling to 10% or less by midnight

Low Cloud and visibility: Occasional cloud above about 600m at first gradually lifting above the summits through the morning, more persistent cloud above 450-600m develops through the evening. Away from cloud visibility very good, falling to several kilometres in evening rain.
